Tonya Harding, mother give differing accounts of abuse, drinking
Ilison Janney's Golden Globe-winning portrayal Customized Football Jerseys of Tonya Harding's mother in I Tonya included two constants:
drinking and physical abuse of her star figure skater daughter.

Harding's real-life mother, LaVona "Sandy" Golden, however, told ABC News as part of a two-hour special that she neither consistently abused Harding and the scenes that showed her drinking while Harding skated as a child were inaccurate.

"I didn't abuse any of my children," Golden said per part of the interview ABC News released ahead of Thursday's show. "Spanked? Yes, (I) spanked. Absolutely, positively you (have) got to show them right from wrong."

Truth and Lies: The Tonya Harding Story airs on ABC Thursday night (9 p.m. ET).

Golden admitted one incident from the movie did occur.

"I spanked her once with a hairbrush custom jerseys at a competition," Golden said.

Golden contends and the scene where Golden threw a steak knife that lodged in her arm indeed took place.

â€œI was about 10 feet from her,â€• Harding told ABC News. â€œIt was a steak knife.â€•

Golden said the incident didn't happen.

As far as the drinking, Harding told ABC News that she knew at age 11 half a thermos her mother would take to the rink in the morning was filled with â€œbrandy and the rest was coffee.â€•

Golden said it wasnâ€™t actually alcohol.

â€œI would have coffee and sometimes I would put brandy flavoring in it,â€• Golden said
